CHICAGO, June 5.-Early in the afterpoon the Illinois Trust and Savings Bank postel a notice saying that the bank would remain open until 9 o'clock to-night to pay depositors, and that the commercial branch of the institution would remain open until the same time to pay

Later it was announced that the bank would open its doors at 9 A. M. to-morrew, or an hour earlier than usual to accommodate those who wished to withdraw their money. These notices had no effect, however, in allaying the panic, and the bank continued to pay off positors as rapidly as the seven tellers aid count out the money. At 9 o'clock to-sight 500 depositors were still standing in front of the building, and it was determined to go on with the payments.

At midnight the bank was still paying off, and the crowd of depositors, anxious to draw their money, was still as large as ever. The bank officials said that they cared nothing whatever for the run, but were rather pleased than otherwise to pay out the money, as it meant a big saving to the institution in interest, the quar-terly installment being due on July 1st, and all depositors who drew their money to-day have lost that. E. A. Armstrong & Co., dealers in dif-forms, made a voluntary assignment this morning; assets are stated to be $275,000; llabilities $105,000. The firm for twenty years has been manufacturer and dealer in uniforms, regalla, seciety and church goods in this city and Detroit. The assignment was precipitated by an attachment suit filed in the superior court by E. Sawyer for $5,000 for merchandise claim. In the absence of the members of the firm Saturday evening the sheriff took possession of the store and held it till this morning, when the attachment sult was satisfied and a stipulation to that effect filed in the superior court. The news of the filing of the suit had gone abroad, and attachments were threatened from all the creditors. To avoid that contingency and to save themselves and all their creditors they made a voluntary assignment, which they expect will be temporary only.

A Savings Bank Assigns. SANDUSKY, O., June 5.—The doors of the Sandusky Savings Bank, which closed Saturday upon what was generally sup-posed to be one of the soundest and safest institutions of the city, were not opened this morning, but displayed the following announcement:

"Owing to inability to realize upon assets at this time, this bank has been compelled to assign. All depositors will be paid in full."

The present trouble is ascribed directly to the heavy, though groundless, run that was made on the bank about ten weeks ago, and which it withstood successfully at that time, paying out $80,000 within two days, when the run ceased as suddenly as it had begun. This drain upon its immediate available resources handi-capted the bank seriously, although it has been doing as much or more business since the flurry than before, such confidence did the people, especially the busi-ness community, have in its stability. Some heavy demands upon it during the closing days of last week, however, pre-cipitated the crisis this time.

MARRIAGE AND DIVORCE.

Judge Witherspoon Hands Down a Mos Important Decision.

COLUMBIA, S. C., June 5 .- Judge Witherspoon, of the circuit court, has rendered a decision in a civil case which touches in a very important way on the question of marriage in this State, as affected by divorce in another State. The case was brought by C. W. Mc-Creery, of this city, against J. H. Davis to compel the specific performance of contract on the part of the latter.

Davis' refusal to comply was based on the ground that McCreery failed to give him the release dower of his divorced wife, Mrs. Rhoda McCreery. The plaintiff was married in Broadler N. V. plaintiff was married in Brooklyn, N. Y. and two years later his wife separated herself from him, removing to Chicago where she obtained a divorce, McCreery failing to respond to the complain McCreery held that, having thus severe their marriage, Mrs. Rhoda McCreer, has no longer a right of dower in hi oroperty.

Judge Witherspoon, in his decision, says that the State of Illinois, or any other State, has no right to set aside the civil laws of this State, which are as sovereign as the State.

The marriage was efficer contracted un-der the laws of New York or of South Carolina, and if under the former, the laws of that State will only permit of a divorce for adultery, while under the latter, the law permits of no divorce pro-ceedings. He holds that, according to the laws of this State, the marriage has not been annulled, and the right of dower still holds good, so far as civil action is affected.

In brief, the action of a Chicago couror the court of any other State or coun-try, is powerless to affect the laws of try, is powerless to anect this commonwealth. The case is de to prove of great Importance to prove of great Importance. property interests of this State.

Cracks also developed, and although the bottom was yet been completely remedled. There are different theories as to the cause of the break, but the most plausible one is that ne sheet piling, which is intended to sclude the water in some measure and elleve the bottom of the dock from exraordinary pressure, was not carriedown far enough to perform its functions In addition to this lapse there was a failure to place relief valves in the bot

The latter would then place the race according to the tips and a few minutes later the result would and a few minutes later the result would be flashed over the wires. The Western Union people in New York, however, caught their man holding back a dispatch, and a detective, who came on to Baltimore, spotted his men at once. PRESIDENT CLEVELAND AT WORK BRIGHT AND BARLY.

No Virginians, However, Appear in His Batch of Appointments_Our Time Near at Hand-Other News.

Times Bureau, Rapley Building, | Washington, June 5, 1893. | The President got back from his fish ing trip in Virginia yesterday, and to-day was at his desk bright and early, and to celebrate his return from the shores of Virginia, made a batch of five appointments, but did not think the luck which he enjoyed there with gun and rod deserved any especial recognition, for he failed to make glad the heart of any aspiring Virginian, as he could so easily have done, by a stroke of that small steel stud he sways.

Mr. Cieveland has published to the world already the fact that "Old Virginia world already the fact that that the virginian never tires," nor is she ever cast down by even such a thing as the failure of the President to recognize the merit of "her favorite sons," who are looking to him for office. The contingent of office-seekers here now is not large, but ad-ditions are shortly expected, and they will buckle on their influence, take a reef in their trouser bands, and assail the ears of the various chiefs of departments under whom they hope to serve, and the cars of the President will ring with their praises as sung by those who are allowed to gaze into the broad face, now bronzed, they say, by the summer suns of the Eastern Shore.

It is confidently predicted here that Virginia's turn is near at hand, and that something will "be heard to drop" in the that something will "be heard to drop" in the very near future, and the same holds good for North Carolina, which State is more largely represented here now than Virginia. There are still several good places for which Virginians are applicants, and which, if her dues are given her, should come her way, and in these places are not included the many applications for consular positions some these places are not included the many applications for consular positions, some of which have really been promised to Virginians who have recently been here, and who have gone home confident that their wishes will be granted. Indeed, it looks very much as if two good consular plums would soon fall to old Virginiane to a representative from the Southwest, another to Eastern Tidewater.

Colonel Hoge has learned all probability, will at that time be made Vice-Consul. Colonel Hoge has learned much in the last few days by reading the reports of his predecessor, and "speaks from the book" about caste and other social matters in the "Flowery Kingdom," some of which, especially in the matter of servants, are very annoying and inconvenient to the Americans, who know little by experience of the difference in social standiur between the cook and the chamber-misil, which in China may be thirty er more degrees. The good work accomplished by Congressman Swanson since he came here, soon after the inauguration, is talked of on all sides, and those who have had chance to watch such matters and by long experience in the halls of Congress are competent to judge, predict for him a brilliant future in the line into which he has allowed himself to be thrown by the votes of the people of his district, whose faith in him has been materially strengthened since they have seen the result of his work; so much, indeed, has result of his work; so much, indeed, has he added to his popularity by his attention to the wants of his people and the results he has accomplished, that it would not be a matter of surprise to see him returned again to Congress by the flattering acclamation of a proud constitutive. ney. As has already been noted Mr. Swanson, by unfiring efforts, secured the first and biggest appointment for Vir-glala in Consul-General William, T. Fownes at Rio, and, then, another vie fory was secured by him in the appointment of Mr. A. J. The district attorneyship of the Western district is one of the biggest offices in the State. Mr. Swanson is making friends here on all sides, and the opening of the extra session of Congress will find him with a wide acquaintance that will prove f material worth to him. He will rank as one of the most youthful members of the Fifty-third Congress, but his lack of years will be more than counterbalanced by his natural abilities.

At the Treasury to-day Mr. Swanson presented the claims of Mr. J. D. Blair, of Danville, for a chief of division of that department, and those of Mr. J. G. The big race for the New York postoffice was run to a finish to-day, the final judge announcing that a very dark horse in the person of Mr. George M. Dayton In the person of Mr. George M. Payton had come in ahead. The appointment was in the nature of the biggest surprise of the present administration, and the choice in the betting was Morris J. Powers. Nobody here knows much about Mr. Dayton, and it is variously stated that he is a "snapper" and an "anti." Nowspapermen hustled to find out and failed, and those members of the administration who might have been expected istration who might have been expected to know either did not or would not, and it is more than probable that Mr.

there has been no mystery nor secrecy in regard to my intention in this matter. I think it not amiss that our people should be informed authoritatively that the time is at hand when their representatives in Congress will be called upon to deal with a financial condition which is the only menace to the country's wel fare and prosperity. It is well for the people to take up the subject for them selves and arrive at their own conclusions as to the merits of a financia policy which obligates us to purchase idle sliver builton with gold taken from our reserve. One does not need the eye of a financier to see that this gold th tracted from the Government's stock is eagerly seized by other nations for the purpose of strengthening their own credit at our expense.

"I think that between now and the meeting of Congress much depends upon the action of those engaged in financial operations and business enterprises. Our vast national resources and credit are abundantly sufficient to justify them in the utmost faith and confidence. If, instead of being frightened, they are con-servative, and if, instead of gloomily anticipating immediate disaster, they con tribute their share of hope and steadines they will perform a patriotic duty and at the same time protect their own interest. The things just now needed are soolness and calmness in financial circles and study and reflection among our people,"

M'GLYNN DOING PENANCE. He Refuses to Go to Rome in Sack Cloth and Ashes. NEW YORK, June 5 .- Notwithstanding the many assertions that the Rev. Dr. McGlynn has salled for Rome on the Apocryphal steamer, it is known by his closest friends that he is in retreat in the trapplst monastery, near Lexington, Ky., and that he will stay there some time, probably all the summer, doing penance. Dr. McGlynn in many of his Cooper Union lectures declared he would never go to Rome in sack cloth and ashes, and it is said that the retreat is in the nature of a compromise suggested by Mgr. Satolli and agreed to by Dr. McGlynn after consultation with his friends.

After the retreat he will have been purged, and then he may go to Rome, not as a penitent seeking forgiveness, but as a priest with all his rights.

PIRE ON A STEAMER. Flames on the Queensmore Were Distinguished With Very Little Damage.

NEWPORT NEWS, VA., June 5 .- Fire aboard a large steamer off pier No. 5 created quite a sensation here to-day. The name of the steamer is the Johnston Line steamship Queensmore, sailing from Baltimore, with a deck lead of cattle and a general cargo for Leverpool. Fire was discovered in one of her spare bunkers, just outside the capes, and she returned, making for Newport News, her nearest port, where she could discharge her cargo and repair, if necessary. The tug Wanderer, belonging to the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Company, which is equipped with powerful fire pumps, with Captain W. N. Cooksey in command, met the Queensmore a little this side of Old Point to render such assistance as Old Point to render such assistance as was necessary.

The steamship anchored off the Chesapeake and Ohio pler, No. 5, at 11:30 A. M., and the fire at 3 o'clock seemed to have been entirely under control. Al-though until some of the cargo is dis-charged the amount of damage carnot be ascertained, it is probably trifling. A strange coincidence is the fact that this vessel is of the same name as the first Queensmore, which caught fire on a voyage from Baltimore to Liverpool, and was a total loss.
